Imagine checking in to a hotel via self-service while being greeted by robots in one of the most futuristic hotels in the world. What about having the robots deliver towels, hangers, and other amenities securely to your room? Curious? Read on...

Located in the heart of Singapore, YOTEL officially opened its doors to the public in October 2017. The 30-storey building is situated within the 2.2km shopping and entertainment district of Orchard Road. YOTEL Singapore's central location allows easy access to the Art Science Museum, Clarke Quay, and Singapore Botanic Gardens, a UNESCO Heritage Site.

General Manager Brendan Daly commented: "We are receiving fantastic feedback from our guests about the YOTEL concept. We believe that our cabins, inspired by first-class travel, and the Club Lounge on TEN will be in high demand by guests who are looking for something different with a touch of magic. In line with YOTEL's tech-forward reputation, the experience is going to be enhanced a little further by the addition of new YOTEL-iers: our two robots!" YOTEL Singapore is set to boast the world's first multipoint hotel delivery robots, the first of their kind to be equipped with simultaneous localisation and mapping (SLAM), allowing them to navigate around the hotel autonomously.
